

Title: Algorithms for intersection of m spheres in a space of dimension n .

The problem of determining the intersection of m spheres in a space of dimension n is equivalent to a problem of determining the coordinates of an unknown point when the distance among m known points are given. This problem has a lot of applications such as determination of protein structure, sensor network localization, navigational problems and many others.